

PRIVACY POLICY NOTICE

Nova Wealth Management, Inc. (“Nova,” “we,” “us,” or “our”) is committed to protecting the privacy and security of the nonpublic personal information entrusted to us by our clients and consumers. This notice describes how we collect, use, disclose, and safeguard personal information in accordance with applicable federal privacy laws and regulations, including Regulation S-P and the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act.

Information We Collect

We collect nonpublic personal information about our clients and consumers as necessary to provide investment advisory and related services. This may include:

- Name, address, telephone number, email address, and date of birth
- Social Security number and other identifying information
- Income, assets, net worth, account numbers, and account balances
- Beneficiary information, investment objectives, financial information, and investment history
- Other information necessary to provide and administer our services

How We Use and Share Information

We do not sell your non-public personal information. We may disclose non-public personal information to non-affiliated third parties only as permitted or required by law, including:

- To complete transactions or account changes as directed by you
- To maintain, service, or administer your account
- To broker-dealers, custodians, or other financial institutions as necessary to provide services or satisfy regulatory or supervisory requirements
- To service providers and contracted third parties that assist us in developing, supporting, or delivering services to you
- To entities under common ownership or control with Nova, where permitted by law
- At your request or with your authorization, or when required or permitted by law or regulatory authorities

We require service providers that have access to customer information to maintain appropriate safeguards designed to protect that information from unauthorized access or use.

Protection of Your Information

We restrict access to nonpublic personal information to employees, representatives, and service providers who have a legitimate business need to access it. Nova maintains administrative, technical, physical, and procedural safeguards reasonably designed to protect customer information against unauthorized access, use, alteration, or disclosure. Safeguards may include access controls, authentication procedures, employee training, secure information systems, vendor oversight, and other measures appropriate to the nature and sensitivity of the information.

Security Incidents & Notification

Nova maintains written policies and procedures designed to detect, respond to, contain, and recover from unauthorized access to or use of customer information. If we determine that sensitive customer information has been, or is reasonably likely to have been, accessed or used without authorization, we will take appropriate steps to investigate and contain the incident and provide notification to affected individuals when required by applicable law.

Disposal of Information

Nova maintains procedures designed to properly dispose of customer and consumer information when it is no longer required to be retained, consistent with applicable legal, regulatory, and business requirements.

Changes & Your Privacy Questions

We may revise this notice to reflect changes in our practices, applicable law, or regulatory requirements. When required by law, we will provide a revised privacy notice. Questions regarding this notice or our privacy practices may be directed to: